HOW IT HAPPENED

It Was Not Molten Metal That Burned Captain Jones and His Men,

BUT THE BURNING COKE AND GAS.

All the Victims of the Accident Doing Well Except Mike Quinn.

MUCH SYMPATHY FOR THE SUFFERERS

At 11 o'clock last night the condition of Captain Jones was greatly improved. His brother was seen at the Homeopathic Hospital and said that he had gradually grown better since midnight on Thursday. He will recover, as the injuries on his legs are merely flesh burns, and his body is not badly hurt. The swelling on his face has been greatly reduced, and it will not be disfig-ured much, it at all. His head has been severely hurt by striking a brick or something probably when he fell into the pit. He suffers most from the burns on his left hand, which are very severe, and he is con-stantly raising it in the air.

The men at the Mercy Hospital are also greatly improved, with the exception of Mike Quinn, whose recovery is exceedingly doubtful.

The accident was not, as was first supposed, due to the gushing forth of the molten metal, but by an avalanche of red hot coke and cinders which were forced out through the face of the furnace by the settling down of the "bosh," Repairs had already been effected, and the brickwork strengthened by means of bands of sheet iron which encircled the structure when the visit was made, but it was ascertained that the breach through which the coke and ciuders were precipitated was not more than two feet square.

The distance from the sand to the aperture is about nine feet. The "notch" or cinder hole at which the difficulty occurred is raised about 12 inches above the sand, across which a trough is constructed to conin the pit below. The area of room immediately in front where the accident happened would not exceed nine square yards the ground slopes away rather quickly toward the pit edge, making the foothold all the more insecure in case of necessity to clear out in a hurry.

Captain Jones was crouching down in the sand to get a look into the hole when, without any warning the face of the furnace gave out, allowing the hot oburning coke and gas to escape. atlowing the hot cinders and
